Yacht characteristics

Hull characteristics

Ipharra superyacht is custom made in aluminium, and is ready to comfortably accommodate up to eighteen people onboard (when Pullman beds are used). The spacious hulls have a very large fuel storage space which makes Ipharra a long range cruising catamaran fully autonomous in the open sea. The hulls are streamlined and comprised of four sets of six-parted hull windows giving great visibility from all cabins and common areas.

Aft, engine room and steering compartment are situated on each hull. In the aft, each hull converts into a large swimming platform providing easy access to water and yacht tenders.

Ipharra's beam is 42 ft in its largest point creating large outdoor and indoor space for studying, leisure and fun.

The depth of the boat is practically insignificant for a catamaran of this size (max. 2.5m) which will enable the guests to get really close to the beach and to drop the anchor in mooring areas and marinas. The height of the wet deck has been designed for the catamaran to be able to sail in bad sea conditions with little wave slamming. The bow of the boat has an angle of 10° and a slight tulip shape so that it will avoid heavy bow diving in bad sea conditions.

Everything has been done to ensure maximum sailing comfort even in the most challenging sea conditions.

The boat is Bureau Veritas classified and built under the MCA rules.

Interior design and décor

The interior design and layout arrangement were studied to build a practical vessel with many storage places. Almost all the furniture is movable providing the possibility of changing the interiors to suit the passengers' needs and desires.

The interior style of Sunreef 102 is a combination between modern and classical elements of decoration. Two types of wood are used in the overall design: dark wenge wood and light anegre. This blend of colours creates a strong dark & light contrast that highlights the geometric composition of the furniture. Trapezoid, square and cube forms are easily recognizable in the main outlines and in many decoration details such as handles, lamps, table legs, and the rest. Wenge is mainly used for the floors, bookshelves, beds and decoration elements while Anegre was used to cover the walls, doors and wardrobe.

The original crème upholstery from Skai Elitis guarantees a checker-board effect. Beside Wenge and Anegre woods, different types of skai are applied on the walls and ceilings, all in beige, ivory and cream creating harmony and balance for the carefully designed interiors. Ipharra comes as a stylish and elegant vessel not losing anything of her pragmatic side.

Onboard communications

Stay connected while sailing! Ipharra is designed to be your luxurious floating office and classroom. Ipharra is permanently connected to the world via internet through its satellite SatCom and GSM links. Internet is distributed all over the yacht via Wi-Fi to facilitate your internet browsing, emails, stock market trading and your other online activities. You can also send and receive faxes on the yacht.

A stylized, handwritten-style logo for the yacht 'Ipharra'. The letters are fluid and connected, with a long, sweeping underline that extends to the right.
